TALIHINA, Okla. — The arrest of a woman for possession of cocaine at a North Little Rock gas station is the latest in a string of drug-related incidents in that city, according to the city’s police department.

North Little Rock police said they arrested Danielle Watts, 26, of Little Rock, on suspicion of possessing cocaine.

Watts was booked into the Pulaski County Jail and is scheduled for a court hearing.

Police responded to a call on Saturday about a vehicle on Slagley Road, a busy state road near the Arkansas River.

The woman was arrested and taken to the Pulaski County Jail on suspicion of possessing cocaine.

Watts’ condition was not immediately available.

She was booked under her maiden name, Pettigrew.

The event was no surprise, according to the North Little Rock police department.

They have arrested at least 14 people at this gas station in the past two months.

The most recent arrest was on July 13, when police said Pettigrew was driving a car.
